A. L. FERGUSON RECEIVES SAD MESSAGE

News of Mother's Death
Phoned from Iowa

A. L. Ferguson, vice-principal of the day school, and principal of the night school at Glendale high, received a great shock Tuesday afternoon in a telephone message from his brother in Tama, Iowa, stating he had just been telephoned that their mother was dead at Clarence, Iowa. The brother said he was leaving at once for Clarence, and would send additional particulars this morning.

About a year ago Mr. Ferguson's father died, and the family home at Clarence, was sold. Mrs. Ferguson spent last winter in Glendale with her son and found the climate so beneficial that she decided to come here permanently and Mr. Ferguson has been building a home for her beside his own. She had gone to Clarence for a last visit with old friends before coming west.

LOS ANGELES PEPLS COME TO CERRITOS

Some Room in Grades May
Aid in Getting State
Funds

APPEALS CONSIDERED

Enrollment Before End of Year Expected to Be Greatly Increased

Superintendent Richardson D. White reports that he is being flooded with applications for permits to enter in the Glendale schools students from across the line in the Atwater tract and adjacent territory, who are supposed to attend school at the small school house Los Angeles has erected there.

There is still room in some of the grades at Cerritos for a few more pupils and the additional enrollment would bring additional state funds next year.

Mr. White will bring the matter before the board of education and suggest that he be given authority to select sixty or seventy pupils for whom accommodations could be found at Cerritos and Glendale Avenue Intermediate without crippling the school's capacity to handle the additional enrollment which will be coming in all the year.

Last year's experience showed that the attendance steadily increased, the enrollment at the close of the year being far in excess of the first week's registration. This was due, Mr. White says, to the constant arrival of new families in Glendale.

ROTARY MOVES FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Asks the Board of Education
For a Special
Teacher

Messrs. Eastman and Crofton, representing the Rotary club, appeared before the board of education at its meeting Tuesday night to ask it to undertake the responsibility of the work the club has been carrying on in furnishing a teacher for crippled children, who are unable to attend the public schools.

The board agreed to take the matter under advisement and to make a survey to determine how many children would need such instruction and advise the club later.

The question of laying the dust at the Glendale Avenue Intermediate campus came up and Business Manager Black was instructed to take steps to relieve the immediate situation and to communicate with other schools to ascertain how they meet this problem during the fall and spring months.

What to do with the applications of outside children for admittance to Glendale schools was the subject of considerable debate, and as a result all applications were denied except a few on the Brand avenue, who are included in the Burbank district.

It was agreed that the extra room in a few of the grades at Cerritos will all be needed before the school year closes and therefore it would be unwise to take in children from across the line.

The board approved Mr. White's recommendation that Miss Fritch be appointed to teach the A-8 class at Cerritos, which will be graduated at the end of the first semester.

The board also approved the appointment of Mrs. Birdeen Anderson for departmental work at Wilson Avenue Intermediate.

To relieve the congestion in the A-4 and B-5 grades at both Pacific Avenue and Columbus, the board adopted the suggestion of Mr. White that the vacant room at Columbus, which has been used for storage, be converted into a class room, where 28 children from Pacific Avenue and the overflow from Columbus can be instructed, the Pacific Avenue pupils to be transported on the P. E. bus.

To relieve the kindergarten at Pacific Avenue and Acacia, the board voted to open the vacant room at Magnolia and employ another teacher. Fifteen children will be transported from Pacific Avenue and five from Acacia.

The matter of a school nurse was again brought up and the board decided to employ one, instructing Mr. White to investigate applicants for the position and report.

The board also decided to make the matter of physical examination of pupils subject to the wishes of parents.

AMERICAN WOMAN WHO MAY BE GREEK QUEEN

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Paris today speculated on the possibility that the "dollar princess," the American woman who backed a king and lost, may sit on the throne of Greece as queen.

Princess Anastasia, wife of Prince Christopher of Greece and the widow of William B. Leeds, the American tinplate king, had no statement to give out concerning the abdication of her brother-in-law, King Constantine.

Reports, however, are that Christopher would be recalled to his country as king were met with a denial by him.

The United Press was handed a statement by the royal visitor which declared such reports "unfounded."

Christopher pointed out that Princes George and Paul and several others were in line before him.

Friends of the former Mrs. Leeds expressed their sympathy for her in the Greek debacle. She not only had her whole heart wrapped up in the cause of Greece, but through Constantine, but had always, it was reliably reported, spent large sums of money in backing the king.

King Constantine was forced to abdicate the Greek throne in favor of his son, Prince George, following a bloodless revolution of his armies, who demand that Greece wage a finish fight on the Turks to prevent them from occupying Thrace.

The display of fall suits, blouses, hats and accessories by the professional models followed by the spotlight showing of hats, created loud applause. The Hunt sisters then introduced sport costumes, knitwear, golf and auto togs with a song and dance entitled "Smiles."

Afternoon gowns were introduced by a violin solo, played by Miss Hazel Linkogel, accompanied by her sister, Pearl G. Curran, at the piano. This was a Spanish dance number and Miss Linkogel's wonderful talent as a violinist was effectively brought out.

Mrs. Harry P. MacMullin very beautifully sang, "Rose of My Heart," by Lohr, accompanied at the organ by Paul Carson. She wore an afternoon gown of brown satin and silk lace.

A musical reading, "Annual Protest," by Marie Gray, student of Frieda Peycke, was accompanied on the piano by Lily Litch, a student of the Emerson School of Expression. This introduced fall wraps and hats. Mrs. MacMullin then sang Schubert's "Ave Maria," by request, accompanied on the violin by Miss Hazel Linkogel and on the harp by Enoia Hopkins.

Evening gowns were introduced by a harp solo, "Impromptu," by Enoia Hopkins.

The closing number was a garden dance given by the seven girls from the Pearl Kellar school. They were cleverly costumed in little old-fashioned hoop skirts and carried ostrich fans and sun shades.

As a grand finale, all models appeared on the stage in evening wraps and the applause indicated that the audience appreciated their work.

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of the Ways and Means committee for the Tuesday Afternoon Club, appeared on the stage carrying a large basket of pink tea roses and fern. This she presented to Mrs. E. C. Pendroy in behalf of the club as a small token of their appreciation of what she had done.

Mrs. Montgomery also thanked those artists who so kindly appeared on the program and all of those who helped make this fashion review the huge success that it proved to be.

All costumes worn by musicians and models are on display today at Pendroy's store, on the second floor. Here they may be observed more closely.

YOUR NEWSPAPER

If you could look back over the files of YOUR NEWSPAPER for the last eighteen months, you would be proud, as we are, of what YOUR NEWSPAPER has accomplished, in the directing of thought in Glendale.

It was YOUR NEWSPAPER that, when the air was filled with theories of sewage disposal, annexation propaganda, and kindred arguments, stood firm for an outfall sewer without annexation to Los Angeles.

It was YOUR NEWSPAPER WHICH FIRST WARNED THE LOS ANGELES AUTHORITIES THAT UNLESS IT PERMITTED GLENDAL TO DISPOSE OF SEWAGE THROUGH THE PROPOSED SEWER OF THE GREATER CITY, IT WOULD MENACE ITS OWN WATER SUPPLY THROUGH BACKING UP OF GLENDAL'S CESSPOOLS.

During all the events that followed, through the election of the Los Angeles sewer bonds, that truth of YOUR NEWSPAPER has remained at work in Los Angeles.

Its fruition came in the address of Major Griffin before the Federation of Civic Improvement Associations when he revealed that the council of Los Angeles had changed its attitude, that the outfall would be open to Glendale and Burbank, and Eagle Rock, on payment of cost of construction, without annexation.

Far more beautiful than anything ever before staged in Glendale, was the annual fashion show put on last night by Pendroy's, as a benefit for the Tuesday Afternoon club building fund. William A. Howe kindly donated the Glendale theater for this review.

The wonderful display of fall fashions was beyond the expectation of any of those who saw this show, full of marvelous creations by Dame Fashion for milady's wardrobe.

The audience was simply delighted with the entire affair, and was more than proud that it was possible for a town like Glendale to put on a fashion review of the kind that very favorably compared with the fashion review at Grauman's in Los Angeles. Such a display is a boost for Glendale.

Paul Carson, the accomplished organist at the Glendale theater, graciously opened the program by an organ selection. He played all through the showing of the costumes and his talent was displayed to a great advantage.

The "Nymphs of Fashion," a song and dance given by several pupils of Pearl Kellar school, was a clever little sketch. The words of which were composed by Mrs. E. C. Pendroy and set to music by Mrs. L. N. Hagood. The dance was created by Pearl Kellar. The girls who took part were the Misses Helen Orr, Shirley Hitchcock, Cecily May Fischer, Glen Hitchcock, Evelyn Hunt, Leona Hunt and Dorothy Dutton. They wore evening gowns in pastel shades with picture hats to match.

WORLD ENTERING NEW ERA, HE DECLARES

Asserts Glendale Is in the Center of a New Empire of the World, with the Best of America Flocking to the District Between Los Angeles and This City

A capable and eloquent appeal for the support of the people of Glendale to the work of the Alcoholic Educational association, which has its headquarters in Pasadena, was made Tuesday night at the open forum meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, by Capt. Richmond P. Hobson. Capt. Hobson recounted years of research on the question of alcohol, and concluded with a plea that the people of Glendale give their sympathy and support to the movement of which he is head, which has for its aim the education of mankind the world over as to the detrimental effects of man's greatest enemy—alcohol. The subject of his address was, "A Scientific Extension of Education."

"Friends and neighbors of Glendale," the speaker began, "I am barking on a new era," said Capt. Hobson. "It is just beginning to realize that the human race is the greatest living organism, and the group is under the laws that exist, just as much as is the individual."

"In years gone by I spent quite a time in intensive study of the scientific laws that govern war. While at Annapolis was engaged in scientific research along one line or another. I was sent by the government to Europe, where I took several post-graduate courses. I took up the study of war as a social problem. My findings were embodied in my paper, 'The Coming War in Europe,' which was written some time previous to the great war. It was laughed and jeered at by most of the great men of the day, but the war really came. I served eight years on the naval committee of the house, during which time we dwelt largely on the question of preparedness."

"Recently I have been applying scientific methods along other lines. The results of these have brought me to the realization that we—you and I—are now living in the center of a future empire. Right in this immediate vicinity they are laying the foundations for a great empire. The best people of Europe are coming to America, the best in America are coming to California, and the best in California, I am convinced, are coming to Glendale. I am now living in Los Angeles, and from all your happy faces I feel sure that I stopped just a little too soon—just one station too soon."

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that the race today is out of harmony with nature—it is sick. We must relieve the illness before we will have strength to develop. We must begin to study the ills of society, to know the ills of the individual. For this reason social pathology chairs are being established in our largest universities. "The cause of the universe must advance. It can't stand still. If it begins to go back it will be ground up. Most of the ills that affect society are scavengers. War, destructive revolution, strife in industry—all of them have the effect of killing self. In this we have not the wisdom of bees, for wolves do not kill one another. Commercial organizations must co-operate if they want to serve—they must get in harmony with nature. From being bitterly opposed to prohibition the people of this country have turned around and are now in favor of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. This result was achieved through education, which showed the harmfulness and damaging results of alcohol."

"Our object is to educate not only the adults, but also the young—to do away with alcohol before the young are contaminated. In the beginning of our fight against alcohol the W. C. T. U. society was our only standby. We were called fools, lunatics, but what of that? My pamphlet foretelling the 'great war' was also laughed at and jeered."

"War is only the result of a certain state of mind. Our aim is to remove the cause. Alcohol is the cause of war. By its workings on the human brain it engenders hatred, greed, and the like—theby plunging individuals and nations into conflict. It is our work to educate the people of the world along this line. In the beginning we had little assistance. We were laughed and jeered at on all sides, but it was not long before our arguments began to have effect."

"We sent five million copies of my prohibition speech in the house to the people of the United States. Inside of 18 months all of the leading organizations in the country had passed resolutions supporting the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. The politicians and statesmen of the country do not even yet know what has happened."

"We have organized the Alcoholic Educational association, which will start its research educational work in Pasadena next week. The results of this research work will be made public. Meetings will be held in all the cities of Southern California, the first to be held at Long Beach."

"October 4 will be Glendale night. The meeting will be held in the high school. I want all of you folks

GRAND VIEW TO HAVE OWN P. T. A.

Monday afternoon at 3 p. m., Mrs. H. V. Henry, extension chairman of the First district P. T. A., and Mrs. E. B. Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 they will organize such an association at the new Intermediate on Glendale avenue. This will make 13 P. T. A. associations in this city, united in the federation mentioned. The new organizations will participate in the "teachers' welcome" to be given by the federation the evening of October 6 in the boy's gym of Glendale High.

"This research work into the causes and effects of alcohol is extremely engrossing. The alcohol found in liquor is the second in the found in nature. It is based on a alcohol called 'Nethane.' Every member of the alcoholic family is deadly poison, but of these wood alcohol is the most deadly.

"Alcohol in liquor has two characteristics. First it attacks the parts that are highest in evolution—in the highest scale of life. Alcohol throws anything that is living out of harmony with nature. Secondly it attacks the reproductive faculties of plants, mammals, humans of all grades. There is as much alcohol in beer as the whiskey that is consumed. Europe today is perishing on account of alcohol consumption. This alcohol attacks the brain and kills the gray matter, and at the same time substitutes scar tissue.

"We want you to join us in our work of education on the evils of alcohol. We don't care what your religion or your politics are. We ask you individually and collectively to join. I have said that you are living in the center of a coming empire, and that is true. This movement has its foundation or central point in Pasadena, and from that point it will spread out over the entire world."

In introducing Capt. Hobson, Attorney Mattison B. Jones said: "I consider it an extreme honor to have the privilege of presenting to you such a distinguished gentleman as the one who will address you this evening—the hero of the Merrimac, who when his country called, was willing to give his life if need be. He thus far has been governed by the principle of service. After appearing in public life for several years he returned to private life to become a lecturer and teacher of the people of the nation. I take pleasure in introducing the 100 per cent American, Capt. Richmond P. Hobson."

The banquet invocation was pronounced by Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor of the Baptist church. Mrs. Helen E. MacMullin rendered very sweetly a vocal selection entitled "Fair Hands, Where Are You Now?" and responded very gracefully to an encore. Community singing during the evening was led by Francis J. W. Henry, who was designated as "the Glendale brewer."

NAVAL WEDDING IS HELD IN GLENDALE

Wedding of Miss Bertha Sayre to Lieut. Young Marked by Fleet

A naval wedding, charming in all its appointments, took place this afternoon, September 27, at 2 o'clock, when Miss Bertha Sayre and Lieut. Louis T. Young, U. S. N., were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 511 South Central avenue. Dr. Cornell of Pasadena officiated, using the Episcopal single ring service.

The Sayre home was artistically arrayed with lavender asters, marigolds and ferns, and the marriage took place at an altar of flowers and greenery formed in front of the large fireplace.

Just preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Virginia Freeman sang "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," by Quiller, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Roberta T. Young, mother of the groom.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white crepe, trimmed with Venetian rosepoint lace. She wore a silk net veil fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bridesroses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The only jewel worn was a beautiful cameo necklace over 100 years old. This necklace is an heirloom, having been worn by the brides of four generations in Lieut. Young's family.

Miss Sayre advanced to the altar on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. The maid of honor, Miss Viola Sayre, sister of the bride, preceded them, wearing a gown of pink georgette, with pink and white picture hat. She carried a bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses and fern. Miss Helen Sayre, sister of the bride, played the Wedding March from Mendelssohn.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom, who was attended by Lieut. Ralph P. Noisat, U. S. N., as best man, both wearing the service uniform.

The ceremony was witnessed by relatives of the bride and groom and a few intimate friends, including the following officers from the U. S. S. Cuyama: Commander John H. Blackburn, Lieut. Commander F. K. Elder, Lieut. C. G. Halpine, Lieut. Byrns, Lieut. J. J. Rochefort, and Lieut. Ralph P. Noisat, all in uniform.

A reception was held for the guests immediately following the wedding, at which time refreshments were served, the principal feature being a beautiful wedding cake.

Mrs. Young is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Sayre, of 914 South Central avenue, and has made her home in Glendale for the past eight years. She is very well-known and has a host of friends who honored her with several social affairs before her marriage.

Lieut. Young is the son of Mrs. Roberta T. Young, of 469 West Oak street, and has lived in Glendale for about three years, coming here from New York. He came here with the Pacific fleet in 1919 and liked Glendale so well that he stayed. He is stationed on the U. S. S. Cuyama.

Immediately after the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to parts unknown, after which they will make their home at San Diego. The bride's going-away costume was of dark brown canton crepe trimmed with pale yellow georgette. She wore shoes and hat to match.

NEW TAX RULING HITS GLENDALE VALUES

Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell yesterday received from Washington a far-reaching ruling of the treasury department which fixes a basis under the revenue acts of 1916, 1917 and 1918 for determining taxable gain or deductible loss in the case of property acquired prior to March 1, 1913, and sold or disposed of subsequent thereto. The basis announced applies to all incomes which were reported under the three acts named.

The ruling is based upon an opinion rendered by Attorney General Daugherty at the request of Secretary Mellon, with whom a brief questioning the validity of the internal revenue regulations had been filed by a large taxpayer.

Six rules to be applied were property acquired prior to March 1, 1913, is sold or disposed of thereafter, are laid down by the department as follows:

1. "A taxable gain is realized if the selling price is greater than the value on March 1, 1913, and if that value is greater than the cost thereof, to the extent that the selling price exceeds the value on March 1, 1913.
2. A taxable gain is realized if the selling price is greater than the cost and if the cost is greater than the value on March 1, 1913, to the extent that the selling price exceeds the cost of the property sold or disposed of.
3. "No taxable gain or deductible loss results if the selling price is greater than the value of the property on March 1, 1913, but less than the cost thereof.
4. "A deductible loss results if the selling price is less than the value on March 1, 1913, and if that value is less than the cost, to the extent of the difference between the value on March 1, 1913, and the selling price.
5. "No taxable gain or deductible loss results if the selling price is less than the value on March 1, 1913, but greater than the cost.
6. "A deductible loss results if the selling price is less than the cost and if the cost is less than the value on March 1, 1913, to the extent that the cost of the property disposed of exceeds the selling price thereof."

BURBANK KIWANIANS PLANNING TO PERSONALLY PAVE STREET IN FRONT OF UNION HIGH SCHOOL

Rev. L. G. Parker of First Christian Church Urges That Work Be Accomplished in Some Manner Before the Rainy Season Starts

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE

Elect Permanent Officers for Kiwanis Club; Harry B. Watson, President; Erza Christensen, Vice-President; Tony Gage, Treasurer

The paving of a street by the members personally may be the first big civic step taken by the newly organized Burbank Kiwanis club, plans for a movement of that kind being sponsored at the luncheon meeting of the club at the Elizabeth hotel at noon Tuesday.

The street that may be paved by the physical exertions of the members of the Kiwanis club is the one leading from San Fernando boulevard to Burbank's new Union high school, the street in question being a full block in length.

The idea was sprung by Rev. L. G. Parker, pastor of the Burbank First Christian church, who stated that he would like to see the street improved in front of the new school building be completed before the rainy season starts.

Owing to the huge amount of work in completing the building and making improvements around it, doubts have been expressed if the street paving work can be accomplished in the ordinary manner before the rainy season starts.

It was pointed out that in case the street was not paved before the fall rains start, it would be very disagreeable underfoot for the high school students, as at present there is no paved highway that approaches the building.

Rev. Parker, Tony Gage and F. Stillwell Moore, the latter a high school superintendent, were appointed as members of a committee to investigate the plan proposed by the former.

A permanent Kiwanis club was organized at Tuesday's meeting, officers elected and officials picked.

Harry B. Watson, known among his fellow club members as "Harry," was elected president. He was previously the temporary president of the organization.

Erza Christensen, known as "Chris," was elected vice-president. A. C. Gage, known as "Tony," was elected treasurer, a position he had filled temporarily.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

NOW that our schools have reopened, every possible effort should be made to encourage school savings banks. While much attention has been given to these valuable agencies of thrift work among the young, they have never reached the place of importance that their worth has merited.

The school savings bank system first made its appearance in France in 1834 and the plan was quickly taken up by the school systems in other countries. Nowhere, however, has it ever achieved the success attained in the land of its origin. In 1885 the movement reached America and was first introduced in Long Island City, N. Y. The system has enjoyed a steady growth since that time, but only a comparatively small percentage of the number of school children in the country have become enrolled as depositors.

It is worthy of note, nevertheless, that where the system has been introduced it has invariably proved popular with the children and productive of beneficial results. In most cases the co-operation of a savings bank located in the vicinity of the school has been of great help. The children generally make their deposits with the teacher who turns them over to the principal, who, in turn, sends them to a bank. When a child's deposit reaches one dollar, it is the general custom for the bank to allow the child to open an individual account. In this way a start is made toward the accumulation of money and lessons in business practice are taught.

The flip of a coin decided the song leader for Kiwanis club, L. D. Davidson winning out over Dave Bricker, the latter being picked as assistant song leader.

"Dave," as Mr. Davidson is known, and Dave both gave vocal demonstrations as a tryout, honors being even, so it was decided to flip a coin.

Other officials elected were as follows: Pianist—F. Stillwell Moore, District Trustee—Ralph O. Church.

Directors—David S. Preston, A. R. Graham, R. A. Powell, Ray Sence, Ben Farley, R. W. Shiry and Dr. E. A. Yale.

The attendance prize was won by Dr. V. P. Ervin, the prize being a Red Cross first-aid kit.

The Kiwanis club received an invitation to attend a banquet to be given October 3 by the Alhambra Kiwanis club at that place. No official action was taken regarding the matter.

The Kiwanians promised to turn out in full force at "Kiwanian Night" at the exposition Thursday night.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH

Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

D.H. Smith

The value of life insurance is undisputed. Every right-thinking man who has dependents appreciates the privilege of carrying it. And yet many of these men carry large sums of insurance to protect their families and still actually fail to provide the desired protection.

To be sure, in case of their being suddenly taken away, their beneficiaries would receive a sum of money from the life insurance company, but how many of those beneficiaries would have sufficient business experience to intelligently invest that money to bring a sufficient income to help them struggle along without his guiding hand? Would the wife who had spent her time caring for him come? Would his growing children? Few beneficiaries have the experience necessary to make safe investments of large sums of money. Often, for this reason, the proceeds from life insurance are dissipated within a short time, and the beneficiary is but little better off than if there had been no insurance.

There are many ways in which beneficiaries may be protected. The most desirable is the one which assures security for the principal and permits of an income consistent with conservative investments. This can best be done through a life insurance trust agreement.

By such an arrangement, the proceeds of life insurance are paid over directly to the bank, which accepts full responsibility for the investment of the funds for the benefit of the beneficiaries named in the trust agreement, and under terms provided by the insured during his lifetime.

Provision may be made that the income be paid to the beneficiaries at stated periods, either monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually. If desired, it may be permitted to accumulate and be invested for the benefit of minor children. In fact, the terms under which a life insurance trust agreement may be drawn are so broad as to meet varied needs and wishes.

This is one of the safest and soundest methods of protecting your family from the hazards of inexperience and of relieving them from the temptation of unwise expenditures. A responsible trust company, such as the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, can assure your family's financial well-being and render them a valuable service, not only in this, but in very many other ways. Trust services are of vital importance to so many and are understood by so few, that the Trust Department of this bank is always glad of the opportunity to confer with those interested, and to outline for them how they may be relieved of many perplexing financial problems by availing themselves of those services.

The belief that trust service charges are exorbitant is entirely erroneous. This belief arises from a lack of knowledge of the charges made and the functions performed. Our Trust Department welcomes the opportunity to furnish an estimate of the cost of any service it can render. Patrons of the Brand boulevard or Glendale avenue branches who are interested in the above or any other phase of trust service, are invited to call upon the writer, or Mr. Nelson, manager Glendale avenue branch, who will either secure for them such information as is desired or will furnish them with a personal letter to the proper trust executive at the office of the bank in Los Angeles, with whom they may confer without obligation.

OLDSMOBILE C U T ANNOUNCED BY POLLOCK

J. C. Pollock of the J. C. Pollock company, 208-210 West Broadway, agents for the Oldsmobile in Glendale, is announcing today, Wednesday, a material drop in price of the various models of that machine. This ranges from a cut in the price of the roadster of $150 to a drop of $120 in the price of the sedan. The price of the touring has been cut from $1295 to $1165, a reduction of $130.

A rumor has gone out during the past day or so of a coming reduction in the Oldsmobile, and this has led to unusual activity in inquiries. Now that the drop has actually come, Mr. Pollock anticipates a remarkably active market for the Olds. Several buyers, in fact, having already signified their intention of closing immediately. Notwithstanding the drop in price, the well-known Oldsmobile quality will be maintained in every car turned out, the local distributor joining with the manufacturer in backing up the faithful Olds.

THE REFERENDUM UNION DISTRICT HIGH INSTITUTE SET FOR NOV.

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—This column will be devoted to signed propaganda relating to the various measures on the state ballot in November and other matter of like nature. Responsibility for statements herein lies with the authors whose names are signed. The space is limited.)

The San Francisco "Bulletin" is frankly for a wine and beer amendment, but its editor has a clear understanding of its relation to the state campaign. In a few terse sentences it makes an end to the proposition that prohibition is or can be a state issue. It says:

"Prohibition is in the hands of congress, and while the states may pass legislation going further than the Volstead act, they can do nothing to modify it. The only way the states can register effective opposition to the Volstead act is by voting for wet or moist senators and representatives."

This punctures the stock argument that the Wright act, which makes the law of congress the law of the state, is a dry law just like the initiative measures defeated in 1914 and 1916. The country is already dry, the Bulletin says, and it cannot be made wet unless congress makes it wet. That the claim that the Wright act is a dry law is ridiculous is shown by the action of the states. When the Eighteenth amendment went into effect, the states that already had dry laws retained them to enforce the amendment. They were the following: Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, West Virginia, Wyoming, Montana, South Carolina, Nevada, Virginia, North Carolina, Washington, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Tennessee, Kansas, Utah.

The passage of the Eighteenth Amendment required the states in which a majority of the population were for license also to define their position. Those who were strongly opposed to prohibition and believed that the amendment should be modified or repealed, had to determine how to go about it. They decided that the issue could not be raised through resistance to the passage of enforcement acts complying with the second section of the Eighteenth amendment. This appeared to them to be opposition, not to prohibition, but to enforcement of the law. Acts similar to the Wright act were adopted by them as follows:

Illinois in 1919, New York in 1921, Connecticut in 1921, Missouri in 1920, Wisconsin in 1921, Massachusetts in 1922, Rhode Island in 1921, Minnesota in 1919, Vermont in 1921, Louisiana in 1921, Pennsylvania in 1921, Delaware in 1919, New Jersey in 1922.

The remaining states are Maryland and California. Maryland has an anti-bootlegging law, though less effective than that of other states. The wets of California, therefore, stand alone in maintaining that the passage of an anti-bootlegging act raises the wet and dry issue. In all other states where there is organized opposition to prohibition, the passage of enforcement acts is regarded as raising only the bootleg issue—California Anti-Saloon League.

The movement to discredit the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act was hard hit when President Albee of the Keith theaters circuit issued the following order:

"To the Managers of all Keith theatres; also houses booked through the Keith Vaudeville Exchange:

"There have been many complaints from patrons in reference to jokes about the Volstead act. I feel that the humor in this has been overdone and to continue is irritating to those who favor prohibition. Inasmuch as theatres should not be used for political propaganda, would like to have you notify the artists that any reference to prohibition should be eliminated from their acts. (Signed) E. F. Albee."—World League Against Alcohol.

Principal Moyse Announces Plan for Organization

Principal George U. Moyse announces that under the new institute plan, first tried out last year, a local county institute for the teachers of the Glendale district, including Eagle Rock, La Crescenta, Montrose, etc., will be held October 9, in Glendale high, and another day will be devoted to institute work at the same place November 13, the rest of the institute program being reserved for the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday preceding Christmas in Los Angeles.

A representative of the county office will be present at each of these local meetings and speakers will be provided for both morning and afternoon sessions.

The local schools are asked to provide musical numbers and arrangements will be made to serve a luncheon in the high school cafeteria.

Mr. Moyse is very enthusiastic over this institute plan, which he feels is the valuable feature of bringing together in a comparatively small group all the teachers in the high school district, affording them the opportunity to get better acquainted with each other and developing esprit de corps in the entire school community.

Especially valuable is it in bringing together departmental teachers in the grade and high schools, giving them a chance to compare methods and thus correlate their work.

Superintendent Keppel gives assurance that the program this year will be as fine as last and suggests that the public be invited to attend these institute meetings.

STUDENT BODY DRIVE FOR BIG MEMBERSHIP

100 Per Cent Record of Last Year to Be Striven For

The drive for one hundred per cent student body membership at Glendale high was started Monday when an assembly was held urging all students to purchase student body tickets. Last year Glendale was the only high school in the state to attain a full membership. San Francisco Polytechnic won the coveted place this year. It was announced by Coach Hayhurst at the assembly.

Those speaking were Principal Moyse, Coach Hayhurst, Evert Smith, president of the student body; Isabel Tousey and Allan Pollock.

'SIGN OF THE ROSE' AT THE GLENDALE THEATRE

Automobile accidents are frequent enough in motion pictures to have lost the thrill the audience is supposed to share. But in "The Sign of the Rose," in which George Beban stars at the Glendale theatre today, the motor smash-up has been restored to its own as a means of creating a dreadful thrill. This is accomplished by means of the accident as it is shown on the screen and also the havoc it creates in the life of Pietro Baletti (played by George Beban). These circumstances are calculated to agitate any audience.

Of the physical aspect alone much can be said. The machine, a heavy limousine, rushes through a tenement street in which children are playing blind man's bluff. As the car approaches all the children scurry to places of safety—all, in fact, but the child who is blindfolded and unmindful of her peril. She gropes her way across the street. At a safe distance the machine attempts to turn a corner of the wet street and skids. It bears down upon the child and with terrific force hurls her the full width of the pavement. The little body slides horribly. The eye follows each detail, nothing being left to the imagination. The impact of the wheel is as clearly shown as the limp body of its victim. The camera has overlooked nothing.

GUY BATES POST IN 'MASQUERADER' AT T. D. & L.

A film of great dramatic value, played by real artists, supported by finished performers, staged in appreciation of values, began a three-day run last night at the T. D. & L. when "The Masquerader" was flashed on the silver screen before an audience that filled the house at both performances.

Those who remember the stage presentation of "The Masquerader" will be entranced at the treatment of the theme in the film. Its rare values are brought out in entirely different situations, each of which is an art picture handled by itself, by Buckland, than whom there is no greater director of art in the dramatic world. In his direction James Young registered a distinct achievement in excellence.

A truly great star has come to the screen in Guy Bates Post, the distinguished actor, in the film version of "The Masquerader," a Richard Walton Tully production distributed through First National.

Although he has been acknowledged heretofore as the greatest romantic actor of the day on the American stage, critics and public alike have naturally been tempted to withhold judgment on him as a possible film star until they had witnessed his debut on the silver sheet.

Surrounded by a production of the very first water, and by a sterling supporting cast, the dominating feature of this photoplay is Post's performance of the dual leading roles as Chilcote and Loder. He begins with an inimitable characterization of a distinguished statesman—super-elegant to the point of foppishness, distant to the point of snobbishness, and all contained to the point of vanity. Then, we see this carefully etched picture blurred by excessive indulgence. Chilcote sinks until he succumbs. With his downfall is the rise of another character portrayed by Post—John Loder, a brilliant but unrecognized political writer, struggling with poverty, in humble surroundings. Plunged by a drug fiend's madness into the midst of the political arena, he finds himself in the other man's home.

The supporting cast includes Ruth Sinclair, Edward M. Kimball, Herbert Standing, Lawson But, Marcia Manon, Barbara Tennant and Kenneth Gibson.

Lankershim Truck Driver Fails to Fool County Motorcycle Officer

L. R. Durke, Lankershim truck driver, probably will accept the warnings of a motorcycle officer in the future.

That is, if Mr. Durke ever exceeds the speed limit again, which is somewhat doubted, as he is spending 15 days in the county jail, giving him plenty of time to think it over.

THE OLDEST VOLUNTEER
LONDON, Sept. 27.—John Hentch, 95, claims he is the world's oldest volunteer. He is the sole survivor of forty volunteers, sworn in at Brighton town hall in 1850, and he has never been discharged. During the World war he served in the Veteran Reserve.

Ordered to cut down his speed by a county motorcycle officer after he had passed an intersection at 23 miles an hour, Mr. Durke, not aware that he was being observed by the officer, later crossed another intersection at the rate of 21 miles an hour in his truck.

"Ten days for the first offense; five days for the second," was Justice Follette's ruling when the alleged two-time traffic violator was brought into court.

Mr. Durke's operator's license also was suspended for 30 days.

American Grain Quickly Shipped on U. S. Lines to European Ports.

Loading Grain on U. S. Liner

New York

Now that the harvest season is over there is a big movement of grain from the fertile fields of the United States to the consumers of Europe. The speeding of wheat and other grains from the big elevators at Duluth and other Great Lakes ports to the seaboard is an accomplishment of which but few persons are familiar. From the time the grain leaves the elevators at the Great Lakes ports but twenty-four days elapse before it is unloaded in the ports of Northern Europe.

The vessels composing the fleet of the United States Lines are going out to capacity with grain. This has been the case for almost six months and the indications are that during the remainder of the fall and through the winter months the big ships will carry their full load of cereal from the farms of the United States. The United States Lines sails a vessel every week for London and another each week for Bremen and each of them carries its full quota of grain.

Grain, destined for Europe, to reach the seaboard is taken on speedy vessels down the Great Lakes to Buffalo where it is transferred to canal barges which are towed through the Erie Canal to the Hudson River and down the river to the waiting ships of the United States Lines in New York harbor. In unloading the grain from the canal barges to the liners sailing elevators are used. Two elevators can be unloaded at the same time. The elevators which transfer grain from the canal barges to the liner handle 12,000 bushels an hour which is equal to the annual yield of a 1,000 acre wheat farm.

The canal barges which bring the grain from the Great Lakes average something over 8,000 bushels each. The vessels of the United States Lines are carrying about twenty loads of grain which amounts to 160,000 bushels. Such a cargo weighs 4,285 tons. Little time is lost in loading grain aboard the steamships. As soon as the canal barges have been brought alongside the liner the floating elevator starts to work. The grain is worked up out of the barges on an endless conveyor which carries the cereal to the top of the elevator and it is then shot down long pipes into the hold of the steamer. A great deal of dust is raised during the grain-loading operation, but immediately after the work is completed, stewards aboard the vessel set to work to put things in shape for the reception of passengers.

Recently, in bringing the canal barges with their loads of grain to the seaboard, powerful tugs propelled by Diesel engines were used. Because of the speed and power of these tugs canal barges are brought from Buffalo to New York in less than seven and a half days. In the days when mules were used for the towing of barges from Buffalo to the Hudson and down to New York by slow tugs from three to four weeks were necessary to get grain to the seaboard.

In the European ports, such as London and Bremen, to which grain is shipped, floating elevators are used in taking the cargo out of the holds of the United States liners which aids materially in the speedy transportation of the American farm product.

Every entrant's picture under these rules will be published in the Glendale Daily Press during the contest, and whether or not the baby wins one of the big prizes it will receive free a handsome 5x7 cabinet photograph of itself at the close of the contest.

RULES OF THE CONTEST

FIRST—Children living within the city limits of Glendale, Burbank, Eagle Rock, La Crescenta, Montrose, Sunland and Tujunga only are eligible to participate in this contest.

Special awards will be made during the contest.

THE ONCE OVER

The Seclusion of the Woods

("Carl Sutter, as Adam, and his wife, Margaret, as Eve, have plunged into the Maine forest without food, shelter, or supplies, and will attempt to live six weeks without seeing or getting aid from a single human being."—News Item.)

Scene: Depths of a Forest Far (Supposedly) from Civilization. Adam: Well, here we are in the forest, primeval, far from the madding throng!

Eve: How quiet and peaceful! Adam: Alone but for the whisper of the pines, the cooling of the birds, and the babbling of the brook.

Eve: Just think of it—not a human being around anywhere! Adam: Not a soul!

Eve: Just you and I alone. Adam: All alone!

Voice: I beg pardon, but— Adam and Eve, darting behind a tree and seeing a chauffeur staring at them: Who're you?

Voice: I beg pardon, but can you direct me to the nearest garage?

Adam and Eve: Garage! Voice: Yes; we wuz just trying a country road when we ran outa gas. This is anelluv country—no roads or nuthin.

(Adam and Eve flee in dismay, stopping some miles deeper in the forest.)

Eve: Good heavens! How'd a chauffeur ever get into these woods?

Adam: I dunno; it's hard to pick any place the d-d autos don't go these days. He probably got in by accident, though. We wuzn't bothered again. Must be miles from human habitation.

Adam: How peaceful!

Eve: How still it is!

Adam: Well, we might as well pitch camp here. I'll get some pine boughs and stuff.

Eve: How wonderful it is just to be away from the noises and the nuisances of the city. . . and the disagreeable people!

Voice: Make the finest home development property you ever set your eyes on. And he'll give you a big second mortgage.

Second Voice: You can get 2,000 building lots out of this land, all sixty-foot front. I'd cut a street right through here.

Eve: What's that?

Adam: (grabbing her by the hand): My God! Come on and run! REAL ESTATE PROMOTERS!

(They flee deeper into the forest.)

Adam: (peevishly): Real estate promoters and autoists you find everywhere.

Eve: We're safe now, though. It's much denser in here.

Adam: Yes; this is what you call real woods.

Eve: (sitting on a rock): I don't suppose the foot of man ever has trod this locality before.

Adam: Not a chance! Miles from nearest habitation!

Voice from behind tree: Hello, folks!

Eve, darting behind bush: Oh!

Adam: Who's that?

Florida stranger, advancing with paper and pencil: You're first people I've seen today. . . Could I interest you in a twenty year payment life and endowment policy? . . . Cost you $16 a year payable quarterly and at the end of twenty-five years you will be absolutely independent. . .

Adam, grabbing Eve and fleeing with her: Ye Gods! An INSURANCE AGENT! ! ! !

(As they flee they bump into a party of Boy Scouts, a gathering of Campfire Girls, some classic dancers, five deer hunters and two game wardens. They finally elude them all, and sink, exhausted and amazed, behind a huge boulder ten miles deeper into the woods.)

Eve: So this is what they mean when they speak of the solitude of the forest!

Adam: Aw, quitcher crabbin'! People get every place these days. . . but it's all right now. . . they never get in this deep. . . I'll go shoot a couple of squirrels.

(The sound of some one coming through the brush is heard. A red-nosed individual in a checked suit comes out, sees Adam and sits down beside him.)

Stranger: Just a minute of your time, please. . . I have a proposition that will interest you. . . Nothing like it ever offered before. . . Now we give you Harper's, Munsey's, World's Work, Vanity Fair, Ladies' Home Journal, and The Gentleman Farmer every month, and a complete set of Balzac and Poe for the small sum of. . .

Adam, swooning: GREAT HEAVENS! A BOOK AGENT! (Curtain as they die.)

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

A PROVERB GONE WRONG

An early hour you might have heard The first clear call of the early bird, And you might have seen the lazy squirm Beneath your feet of the early worm.

It was just at dawn in the bright June weather And the bird and the worm were up together.

The early bird had a clear, bright eye On the ground as he went wheeling by, And the early worm had a sluggish crawl, And you could not see his eye at all.

He had heard somewhere that life's best prize Went to the earliest ones to rise.

So the early worm was up at dawn While all of his brother worms slept on, And in his soul was a joy that filled Him straightaway full while the new dawn spilled

"Yo ho!" he cried. "It's quite surprising How glad a thing is early rising!"

For he was a worm who had studied and read. "If the early bird gets the worm," he said, "Then the early worm has a chance to grapple In the early dawn with the early apple. For any proverb there may be That's good for a bird is good for me."

Then the early bird at the early dawn Made a swoop and the early worm was gone; Down, down the length of the bird's sharp bill, To his deep, dark crop and there lay still.

And it's wise for an early bird to roam, But it's better for worms to stay at home.

Admit Tilden Is the Greatest

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—William T. Tilden is the greatest of all tennis players, critics are now generally ready to admit. Until he had defeated William M. Johnston in the recent national championships, there were many unwilling to admit that the great Philadelphia had anything on the star Californian.

Tilden's crushing victory over Johnston, after losing the first two sets, would seem to be sufficient evidence of his superiority. Tilden's supremacy over Johnston is largely a physical one. The champion is stronger than Johnston in that he can endure more and put more power into his strokes. He has a wider collection of strokes and his service is much better than Johnston's.

Watching Johnston play any other opponent, it is hard to realize that there is a better player than he, but the difference is brought out against such a master of the court as Tilden.

Following the championship tournament, the usual rumors that Tilden and Johnston were going into retirement were passed around. Both said they felt like never picking up a racket again, but it is almost a cinch that they will be back fighting again in the nationals next summer.

Reports circulated that he was going into the movies drew a big laugh from Tilden. "Get me a good contract and a good scenario and I'll go into the movies," the champion said.

Gerald Patterson, the popular captain of the Australian Davis cup team, says he never will forget the reception that he got in the United States this summer. The ovation he got at Forest Hills and Philadelphia was tremendous and he was so embarrassed he hardly knew how to take it. His stunt of making a speech to the gallery at Forest Hills and calling Americans the finest sports in the world was something new to tennis.

If Whitey Witt should make a speech to the bleachers in St. Louis he could not pay them the same compliment.

Beating of Witt with a pop bottle during the recent Yankee-Brown series in St. Louis should not cause a black mark against the whole town. Certainly the St. Louis players and the club had nothing to do with it and all but one in the crowd had no hand in it. It was just unfortunate.

It also was too bad that it had to happen to a New York player, because if any team in the big leagues is treated magnificently at the Polo grounds it is the St. Louis club.

In passing out the baseball wreaths this fall, young Ed Rommell of the Philadelphia Athletics ought to be in the front row. Any youngster who can win twenty games with that layout back of him is a RITCHER.

If he gets any kind of material to work with, James P. "Pat" Herron ought to give the University of Indiana a good football team this fall. A natural football player who starred three years at end with the University of Pittsburgh, he has the further advantage of long experience with the Glenn Warner system of coaching and Warner knows something about football.

THINGS LEAST CONCEALED

By JOHN BECK

All the world hates prying eyes. The ant burrows her dark crypts under the earth and the elephant guides his massive bulk through his tall jungles, subtly as a cougar through her chaparral, to escape them. We ourselves resent a stare.

Yet eyes are ever on the peer and who knows when his very secrecy betrays him? Does the cricket creeping beneath a grassstem ever guess it was the quiver of its top that halted the shrike? Cower as they will, a hundred crickets meet that fate to one obvious butterfly, fanning her painted wings on a flower. 'Tis an enigma.

And the most mysterious thing in fur, the most defenseless, hides no closer. I glance at her a dozen times and see only a spray of withered leaves on the twig of an oak, a spray by which I mark the flight of a tantalizing bird. I stride close—stop under it—look up. A swarthy, weakened face hangs above my own, its ears furled back like the lappets of a hood. Its mouth half open as if it panted in its sleep. But it does not more, even to breathe. It is a bat!

From below, the sunlight touches her lustrous coat with a silken sheen; she is a sleek and silken thing, this leader of the troupe which dances to the piping of the night wind. How old and tired she seems! How strangely her wrinkled face contrasts with her velvet robe, of the fashionable henna tone. Her leather sails are folded like a cloak across her white breast; not to conceal its gleam, for it is turned toward the blue shade of the boughs, it would reflect only the same pale blue-green as the distant horizon shining through them, but to shield the young which cling there. Poor weary creature. So soon will the sunset call her and she must leave them where she hangs and flutter forth to earn their living as well as her own. No wonder she is haggard. Doubtless nightwork is wearing; still, then she can make sheer agility take the place of beauty.

Yet who looks her best when

U. S. BRAND ON RIO JANEIRO SHOW

RIO DE JANEIRO, (By Mail).—There have been volumes written that the United States exporters are fast losing the position they obtained in South America during the war, but these volumes seemingly fail to relate the fact that the "Made in U. S. A." trademark is stamped deep on the massive works of construction underway in the Brazilian capital at present. A visit to the international exposition to commemorate Brazil's independence centennial will impress persons with the lasting utility of made in U. S. A. products in Brazil.

The Avenue of Nations, on either side of which are being completed the pavilions of the various countries to participate officially in Brazil's fair, is being laid by a street and roadway construction company of the United States, and one of the three architects whose plans for the construction of the Welcome Arch at the entrance of the exposition grounds were accepted by the government, bears the stamp, "Educated at Pennsylvania University."

On of the greatest works of engineering ever undertaken in Brazil—the razing of Castle Hill in the heart of Rio—offers another scene for the traveler seeking the "Made in U. S. A." stamp. This job is being rushed through under contract by a prominent firm of New York City. Huge granite rocks are being washed into Rio bay, along with tons of red clay, by hydraulic guns that beat into the entrails of the great hill with a pressure of 250 pounds per square inch, breaking the rocks as though they were Humpty Dumpty's egg shell. These giant hydraulic guns bear the "Made in U. S. A." stamp.

Another part of the big hill is being blasted, the dirt and rocks are being dug away, placed in automatic dumping cars and hauled and deposited in Rio bay. Dynamite for the blasting is being furnished by a prominent Delaware concern, steam shovels for digging the red earth from the hill and placing it into the railway cars bear the trademark of an Ohio factory, the automatic dumping cars, which come from a New Jersey town, are being drawn by new locomotives from Philadelphia.

HENRIETTA PUDDING

Beat yolks of four eggs, add one cup sugar, one cup grated apples, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup raisins, one cup blanched almonds, two tablespoons chopped citron, three-fourths cup grated, stale rye bread, one teaspoon each allspice, cinnamon, and one-fourth teaspoon cloves. Add whites of four eggs beaten stiffly.

she's asleep? She may have charm when the spark's in her eye, her ears shake out their curl, and she wings it with the fleetest. And certainly her worst enemy would never know her where she swings in the sun, for all the world to see—and no one sees her.

How strange she should dress in red—the first hue to darken as the sun sinks low. Look you—it is her day-time wear. For she hangs head down. From above, where fly her winged foes (and who else could reach her), you look deep into the pile of velvet. It becomes a play of dull shadows, like the leaves it mocks as he lifeless form swings with them. The least concealed, she is the safest hidden of all shy dwellers in this perilous world.
